Women Rights & Empowerment

Many women face discrimination and disadvantage, lack access to skills and training, and face roadblocks to their active participation in the economy. They often lack the protection of basic rights and laws. Poverty, discrimination and violence against women are major barriers to opportunity.

Women are integral to our business model and growth ambitions. We seek to manage and grow socially responsible businesses where women participate on an equal basis. We believe that women's rights and economic inclusion are priorities to win long-term.

Our approach starts with the respect of the rights of women and extends to their promotion as well as helping to develop skills and open up opportunities, both in our own operations and our value chain.

Addressing Human Rights Impacts

We recognize that we must take steps to identify and address any actual or potential adverse impacts with which we may be involved directly or indirectly through our own activities or our business relationships. We manage these risks by integrating the responses to our due diligence into our policies and internal systems, acting on the findings, tracking our actions, and communicating with our stakeholders about how we address impacts.

We understand that human rights due diligence is an ongoing process that requires specific attention at certain stages in our business activities, such as when we form new partnerships or our operating conditions changes, as these changes may create new potential or actual impacts on human rights.

We understand that there are particularly high risks of human rights abuses, in other countries that we operate. Hence, we place additional due diligence to assess these risks and address them effectively, where appropriate, using our leverage to work either in one-to-one relationships or in broad-based partnerships.

We acknowledge the importance of communicating with our employees, workers and external stakeholders who are or could potentially be affected by our actions. We pay high attention to individuals or groups who may be at greater risk of negative human rights impacts due to their vulnerability or unfortunate circumstances and recognize that women and men may face different risks.

Remedy

We place high importance on creating open and honest communications among all employees and implement effective remedy wherever human rights impacts occur through company-based grievance mechanisms. We continue to build the awareness and knowledge of our employees and workers on human rights, including labor rights, encouraging them to speak up, without retribution, about any concerns they may have, including through our grievance channels. One of the grievance channels, whereby, employees can submit their grievances through the Human Resources Department. They can also submit their grievances and remain anonymous at the same time via alternative channels provided (email, website, hotline). Employees will not have any form of retaliation action taken against them for doing so. All grievances submitted will remain confidential.

We also ensure employees are aware of the Human Rights Policy through training and annual certification process. The Company supports worker committees where grievances can be expressed freely among the employees. We also promote the provision of effective grievance mechanisms by our suppliers. For further details on effective grievance mechanisms can be found in our “Supplier Code of Conduct”. Any concerns are addressed using a robust internal process, and we regularly update our policies and practices based on our findings.

In Conclusion

Our vision is to continuously build an organization that responds to changing views of sexual health and develop products that inspire people to make better and healthier choices. We champion social responsibility and sustainability, not just as moral imperatives but to build better, stronger relationships within our communities.

We constantly evaluate and review how best to strengthen our approach to addressing human rights, including labor rights. We believe that working through external initiatives and partnerships, for example with other industry, NGO, trade union, supplier and other business partners, is often the best way to address shared challenges.

We will track and publicly report on progress on an annual basis.

This Human Rights Policy Statement consolidates our existing commitments and brings increased clarity on our processes and procedures. Its principles are implemented across our operations and value chain.
